

been doing lately. I used to love & miss church but now I could honestly care less and that needs to change. I miss my old faith and commitment. I need to take more time for myself and You. I just hope I can continue this feeling. I'm tired of feeling guilty about the choices I make. I need to stop blaming some of my issues on others and realize that some of them are because I am nothing without you. I don't need anything else and I need to remember that. I find my hope in You. I find love in You. I find my purpose in You. I find peace in You. I find everything in You. You died so I could live and spread your word. That is the purpose of my life, to make and grow followers of Jesus Christ my Lord and Savior.
